WEDNESDAY EVENING, JAN. 21, 1903.

Grab Street, London.

Up to the seventeenth century Grub street was on the outskirts of London. It was a street tenanted by bowyers, fletchers, makers of bowstrings and everything else that appertained to archery. Later on John Fox lived in Grub street, though he did not write his famous "Book of Martyrs" there. Fox's residence in Grub street occurred about 1572. John Speed, the tailor archæologist, was a resident of Grub street, where he was famous as the most responsible parent, having a family of twelve sons and six daughters. Grub street of old and Milton street today is noted for its great number of alloys and courts.

From Grub street issued such famous old literary skits as "Jack the Giant Killer," "Tom Hickathrift," "The Wise Men of Gotham" and scores of others now a part of every boy's library. Probably literary men first began to populate Grub street in any num-bers during Cromwell's time. Then a great number of seditious and libelous pamphlets were circulated, and as the authors for safety had to seek obscure living places they found a fitting retreat in the maze of alleys which webbed the Grub street section. At any rate, by the commencement of the eighteenth century Grub street had become quite notorious as the poor authors' quarter of London.

In man the front of the lower jaw-bone possesses a well marked projec-tion, known as the chin or mental prominence, covered by a fleshy pod of corresponding shape. In all other backboned animals the jawbone slopes back without any such protuberance. It is a singular fact that the presence of a well marked chin is associated with firm character and well marked intel-lectual qualities. This is one of the best founded rules in character delineation by physiognomy. The late Profess-or Huxley used to illustrate the matter by drawing a profile with good chin on the blackboard and then wiping out the chin and replacing it by a receding curve. Any one who repeats the experiment will be surprised at the result. The reason is not clear, but we may perhaps say that a well developed jaw is associated with good digestive pow

She Remembered.

"Rev. Mr. Stern's remarks over poor John were so sympathetic, I thought," STEAN FLOORING said the widow's friend.

"Sympathetic!" replied the Widow Gayrake. "He said John had gone to join the great majority."

LEGAL NOTICES.

The reason is not clear, but we may jornaps say that a well developed alw is associated with good digestive powers, which have more to do with character than one might at first sight suppose.

Antiquity of Grains.

Nearly all the grains now in use are of unknown antiquity, Wheat was each tivated in all latitudes as far back in the past as we have authentic knowledge. Barrley is thought to have originated in the Caucasus, but it was known and used everywhere in the most ancient times. Oats, like 170, were unknown in ancient times. Oats, like 170, were unknown in ancient times on this continent the wild cats found here and there would probably have developed into the useful cereal now considered absoluted with a was in the health of driving back before the discovery of America.

A Dog Story.

An elderly clergyman living some few miles from a market town and somewhat absentimided withal was in the habit of driving there weekly, where we had the substimed developed into the old world, but this useful cereal was doubtless known in India and China many hundred years before the discovery of America.
